do it together

i hate this one but i FORCED to post it.

jk, i got dared to post my least favorite fanfiction I've written. i wrote this in like 40 minutes probably like 5 months ago.

so enjoy as much as possible! ily guys!

Mike's POV.

Eleven and me help each other with homework all the time, she's extremely good at math and i'm the complete opposite. so i invited her over to study.

i was sitting on a chair and she sat on the floor a few feet in front of me.

"who is John wilkes booth?" i looked up from my notebook, she was wearing a pair of high waisted jeans and tucked into them was a white button up with roses all over it.

she is so beautiful, no matter what she's wearing. all her emotions come with different faces and i think it's adorable, and i can't help but blush every time i see her

"he assassinated Abraham Lincoln". she looked so frustrated. "uuuugh, i keep getting him mixed up with the other one". "Lee Harvey Oswald?" i asked, she nodded yes and got up and went up the stairs.

she came back a couple minutes later, stomping down the stairs with a glass of water in her hands.

"El, i promise you'll get it down. but some people just aren't as good at some things than they are at others, like I'm horrible at math and you're amazing at it" she pulled me up and dragged me to the couch, she sat next to me put my arm around her, she then snuggled up and started to lean on me. "it just gets frustrating sometimes." she turned around, at that point we were laying on the couch.

"i know, believe me every kid feels that way" i started to studder and fluster for some reason and then i realized why, we were cuddling. i had my arms around her and our faces were extremely close, i mean we've kissed many times but i feel the same every time.. like this.

she was oblivious to me being extremely anxious and flustered, in fact it looked like she was falling asleep.

"El" i said, to see if she was awake "mmh?"

"can i kiss you?" she opened her eyes "why?" she asked. and that really made me feel anxious. "well we're really close right now and i can tell you're falling asleep and.. I don't know.. you're.. really cute and i didn't want to just kiss you.. i thought that'd be weird and i thought you might be asleep alre-" she kissed me softly, probably to shut me up i thought.

she pulled away still looking at my lips, she looked curious and confused. she looked in my eyes as if asking me a question and i could feel her breath on my neck. my heartbeat started to speed even more.

i looked back and forth between her lips and her eyes, she did the same.

this time we kissed each other. it had never been like this before, it lasted for what seemed like forever. we pulled away and laughed. in a moment of silence looking into each others eyes

"I love you" "I love you". we said it at the same time
